ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS

Submitted by Eric Rogger

◆ OUTDOOR RECREATION IS RECOGNIZED

One of the last acts signed by President Obama was the Outdoor Recreation Jobs and Economic Impact Act of 2016. Fishing is, of course, a major contributor when it comes to outdoor recreation. Pointing out to the powers that be that fisheries are an important component of the national economy should help when critical decisions are on the table. This Outdoor Recreation Act should help secure this economic activity and receive more governmental recognition. It is estimated that six million jobs and $646 Billion are at stake.

◆ AN UPDATE ON PACIFIC BLUEFIN ISSUES

Salt Water Sportsman reported that a group of recreational fishing organizations had informed NOAA of their opposition to having the Pacific Bluefin Tuna listed as endangered. They argued that such a listing would not be beneficial since most of these fish are not caught off our coast. They also quote recent scientific data that shows conservation efforts stabilized populations and stocks are rebuilding. The US, Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission, the Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission have all been active in reducing pressure on these pelagics.

◆ UCLA STUDY SHOWS MISLABELING IN LOCAL RESTAURANTS

An early January report based on a study by UCLA and Marymount researchers that took place from 2012 to 2015 found that 47% of the fish served was mislabeled. "Diagnoses" were made on the basis of DNA tests. Although tuna served by sushi restaurants was mostly found to be tuna, halibut and red snapper were other species of fish. Testing at some grocery stores also found mislabeling similar to that found at the sushi bars.

The document, signed by Alison Hewitt, quotes: "It's not just a question of being miffed that the wrong fish is on your plate but the fraud undermines environmental regulations limiting over-fishing, introduces health risks, and interferes with consumer decisions." The global fish trade is a $135 billion industry and new federal regulations governing monitoring of seafood imports went into effect Jan. 9th.

An Unbelievable Trip on the Constitution

By Sophia Huynh and Kevin Boyle

Where do I even start? This trip on the Constitution was amazing in so many ways. It was Kevin and my first trip on Keith and Nicole's new boat. It was Nicole's first trip out and we were with a great group of friends.

We had 7 yellowfin tuna personal bests with some pretty huge achievements. Ky landed his personal best with a 136lb. Steve beat his previous cow with a 207lb. Earl landed his first cow with a 228lb. Pauline landed her first cow with a 280lb. Nicole landed her personal best of 185lb then smashed it with a 302lb!! Barry added another super cow at 303lbs to his list. Last but not least my amazing boyfriend, Kevin landed a 413lb yellowfin tuna!!!!

I can't even begin to explain how special of a trip this was for all of us. From beginning to end we had a great time; food, company, crew, and boat were all top notch. I can't thank Keith, Jesus, Evaristo, Albino, and Brian enough for all your help and hard work on this trip. You guys kicked ass!!!

Kevin's Fight Story

It is my turn on the kite, and I'm standing next to captain Evaristo, who is sending two beautiful cabbies out on the double trouble balloon rig. Then there is a huge splash as a tuna hits the baits, the balloon flies away, and the line comes tight with a hopefully solid hook set.

Evaristo hands me the rod, and the fight begins. It starts off like any other; in fact, it feels like a smaller model, and I wind quickly as it charges the boat. Then the fish realizes it's hooked and decides to just about dump the whole Makaira 50 spool from the port corner. At this point, Captain Jesus, with his decades of experience, stays with me and helps guide me through the fight.

Now the fish starts to show its true size with its violent head shakes and long runs. The fish takes me from the stern to the bow and back, over and over as we follow the angle and try to get every precious inch of line back on my reel.

At one point, as we come around the stern, the fish shows itself on the surface. We see the length of its Allison fin and realize we have a peek of the true size of this beast, who just decides it isn't time to come home yet and makes another long run towards the bow. We settle in the bow for the remainder of the fight. I'm thankful to have Jesus by my side to help negotiate the fish's deep giant circles going on both sides of the anchor. I utilize the full capabilities of the Super Seeker 6463 XXXXH and Okuma Makaira 50 to wench and guide this leviathan up from deep color to the surface. It takes approximately an hour and twenty minutes to bring this beast ready for the gaff. Keith, Evaristo and Albino are at my side, gaffs in hand, going from port to starboard, waiting for the right moment to stick this giant tuna. They yell for me to wind for the last time as their gaffs are expertly stuck.

We all yell, hoot and holler as we walk the tuna to the stern door. As the guys unlock the door, it becomes clear how large this tuna really is. It barely fits through the door, and when it lands on the deck, pandemonium erupts.

It's all smiles and hi-fives as the cooperation of the other passengers, teamwork and professionalism of this phenomenal crew comes to fruition with this fish of a lifetime. This is a moment that neither myself nor anyone else that was on the trip will ever forget.

Thank you so much to the Constitution and her amazing crew.

The Best Pasta/Fish/Shrimp Dish Ever!

I love pasta. I love shrimp. I am not a lover of typical Italian red sauce. I make this dish for friends and family. The comments usually start with "The best..."

Measurements are all approximate. Here are the ingredients:

- About a pound to a pound and a half of Cherry Tomatoes. I use a mixture of colors if available.
- 1-2 cups of grated Parmesan cheese. I use a high quality cheese that I grate just before preparing the dish...freshest is best!
- A bunch of fresh de-stemmed basil leaves. The quantity depends on how much you adore basil.
- Garlic cloves smashed and chopped, not too fine. I used 6. . I like garlic. Let your conscience be your guide.
- Olive oil... I use a fruity type.
- Linguini...how much depends on the size of the appetites of your guests. Make a pound and you will have some left over. Imported from Italy pasta is silkier.
- Shrimp. I use in the shell, 15-16 to the pound. For 4 people, I bought 1-½ pounds of shrimp. You may cook them in the shell or peeled.

*You may substitute salmon cubes for the shrimp.

Put up a pot of water for the pasta; once it comes to a boil, reduce to a simmer and keep it ready for when you will start the pasta.

Grate the cheese

Cut a slit in each cherry tomato

Smash and chop the garlic.

In a large skillet, pre-heated to medium heat, add a few table-spoons of olive oil. Add tomatoes. Cook at medium heat, stir the tomatoes a couple of minutes and then add the garlic.. Stir it gently, but frequently. The tomatoes should melt, not brown. The garlic should cook...not burn.

This is a good time to put up the pasta. Bring the water back to a boil, add salt if desired.

While the tomatoes are cooking: Rinse the shrimp. My preference is to cook them in the shell as the sauce is richer and the shrimp are more tender, tear the basil leaves.

When the pasta is not quite al dente/done remove it from the water to a strainer, keep the water hot.

When the tomatoes are cooked down to just skins and liquid, add the shrimp. Stir until they are almost done. When fully cooked the shrimp are NOT translucent, the shells are pink, the meat is white. Add about a ½ to a cup of the pasta water, stir, cook down till the sauce thickens a little, add the cheese and incorporate it into the sauce, add the basil, some ground pepper, salt if you use it. You may choose to add some red pepper flakes for heat. Add enough pasta water to keep the sauce from drying up. Taste to balance the flavors...more cheese, basil, salt, pepper?

Add as much pasta to the skillet as needed. A pound should serve six or more. Add more pasta water if needed. The starch in the pasta water will help make the sauce creamy.

Top with some fresh uncooked basil cut chiffonade.

Serve with warmed sour dough bread. 350 degree oven for 5 minutes.

Bon appetito
